

Fix Washington's 3-Strikes Law

1
2
3 WHEREAS approximately 73% of the convictions under Washington's 3-Strikes law are
4 for crimes in the mid to low range of Washington's criminal seriousness scale at RCW
5 9.94A.515;

6
7 WHEREAS Robbery 2, the most common 3-Strikes conviction, and Assault 2, another
8 common 3-Strikes crime, are classified in the least serious quarter of criminal offenses at 9 RCW 9.94A.515, carrying standard sentences of 3 months to 7 years;

10
11 WHEREAS Washington's 3-Strikes population is approximately 40% African American
12 in comparison to a state population that is less than 4% African American;

13
14 WHEREAS Washington's Sentencing Guidelines Commission recommended in 2001
15 removing Robbery 2 from the 3-Strikes list and examining under what circumstances, if 16 any, should Assault 2 be treated as a strike, as the range of behaviors associated with 17 Robbery 2 and, "probably" some instances of Assault 2 do not rise to the level of most
18 serious offenses and that, specifically, in the case of Robbery 2, these behaviors pose
19 "little risk of physical injury"; and

20
21 WHEREAS bills responding to the recommendations of the Sentencing Guidelines
22 Commission have been in the state legislature since 2001;

23
24 THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the WSDCC call for reform or repeal of 25 Washington's 3-Strikes law.
